Word Finder Review: Word Finder Reviews: Rating: Word Finder - Introduction Multiword Finder reviews, What is Multiword Finder? Multiword Finder, is a software tool which comes bundled with a pretty comprehensive dictionary and whose purpose is to aid people in finding several words which contains user-input letters. Simple setup and easy-to-handle environment The installation process does not last very long, as it does not offer you to download products that are not actually necessary for the program to properly work. After you finalize it, you are greeted by a pretty well-organized and clear-cut interface, which only consist of a few buttons and a pane in which to view found words. Some Help contents are incorporated, thus making sure that all types of users, including those with little or no previous experience with computers, can find their way around it with ease. Find matches, use special characters and change the word list This software utility, as stated above, lets you find multiple words which contain some letters that you manually input. In addition to that, you should know that the maximum and minimum word length can be easily customized, with the help of two built-in slider bars or up and down buttons. This demo version is going to show you only 5 matches, yet in the full one you can view all of them. Special characters are supported, while you can also add words to the integrated dictionary, or change the entire list. No other notable options are supported. Bottom line To conclude, Word Finder proves to be a pretty efficient piece of software when it comes to finding particular words. The interface is accessible to all types of users, the response time is good and it is not going to hamper the computer's performance. Q: High-performance PL/SQL code Can somebody recommend a book or article on high-performance (gigabyte/second) PL/SQL code? I know of books on SQL like SQL:1999 and 2000 but they are sparse on PL/SQL. Books on PL/SQL usually go into details of memory architecture and design patterns etc. But, since I am a n00b in PL/SQL my data is stored in a 3GByte BLOB, all connections come from a single 10GByte NVARCHAR2[1024,8192] column which is materialized to a flat file and then read into memory (PL/SQL). That said, I am also hitting the limit that the driver (DBMS_LOB) imposes on the number of bytes per segment (right now it is 1mb) that I can read into. Since I am only reading stuff, this is quite slow. It is somewhat surprising as in the usual usage, this isn't a data-store. It is a key value store to support a read-mostly lookup business (e.g. Top Ten Deals by Time of Year, Today's Deals). Ideas? Thanks.

A: Are you thinking of using a "PL/SQL Bottleneck Analyzer" to find out what's taking so long? There's a book by Kye Leung called Oracle Database Performance Tuning. I suggest you start reading that book even if you aren't planning to use it as a testing tool. It's a light read and will help you understand what the various performance aspects of PL/SQL are. If you're interested in the SQL aspects
